Jamaican-born author Jacqueline P. Walker released a short read, biographical fiction, “A Season of Disruption,” in June 2021. “A Season of Disruption” recounts the story of a Jamaican mother and her children as a twist of fate turns their lives from routine to disrupted. The book chronicles their inspiring struggle to overcome separation and withstand challenges that often break and defeat families.

Ms. Walker is a Certified Professional Technical Communicator (CPTC) and motivational blogger who recognizes the ability of storytelling to entertain, educate, encourage, and build relationships across cultures and generations. She previously self-published “Mothers, Sisters, Friends” – a chapbook of poetry honoring women’s beauty, grace, and strength and “Lyrics of My Reality – Reflections & Inspirations” – a compilation of essays and poems focusing on hope, support, caring, love, and relationship building. Additionally, The Caribbean Writer (an international, refereed literary Journal produced annually by the University of the Virgin Islands) accepted her essay for publication in the upcoming 2022 (Volume 36) edition.

Her current title, “A Season of Disruption,” depicts real-life experiences that she hopes will inspire and encourage readers. Click here or go to <https://www.amazon.com/dp/1736950304>
